Relief Sit-Downer 'Presides'

One of Cleveland's 100 relief sitdowners takes a nap in the chair of the president of the city council as he whiles away the hours. In a direct appeal to President Roosevelt the sitdowners declared they had moved into city hall to stay "as long as necessary" in protest against "a starvation program of emergency relief."

Pennsylvania Turns Down CIO At Polls

LEWIS-GUFFEY SLATE BOWS TO EARLE, JONES

Governor Piles Up 408,000 Lead Over Wilson in Race for U. S. Senate.

KENNEDY RUNS BEHIND

Effect of Farley Intervention Left in Doubt by Heavy Vote at Primary Polls.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—The Pennsylvania bid for political power by John L. Lewis and the Committee for Industrial Organization faded today as returns from primary balloting gave the opposing Democratic state committee slate a sizable lead.

Apparently turned back with Lewis, on the basis of incomplete returns, was Sen. Joseph F. Guffey who joined the CIO chief in supporting Thomas Kennedy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and Philadelphia's mayor S. Davis Wilson for the U. S. senate.

The state New Deal factional struggle, intensified by organized labor's rivalries, was climaxed by the primary-eve intervention of National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley.

Wilson Far Behind.

Gov. George H. Earle, who rebuffed Farley in the latter's eleventh-hour party peace plan, and whose split with Senator Guffey had shaken Pennsylvania's New Deal organization to its foundations, walked away from Wilson.

Charles Alvin Jones of Pittsburgh, Earle's running-mate for the gubernatorial nomination whom Farley proposed to sacrifice for Kennedy, built up a lead of more than 93,000 votes over Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

Political observers debated whether Farley's proposal that Democrats unite on Kennedy for governor and Governor Earle for the U S senate had any effect on yesterday's voting. Earle criticized Farley for "interfering."

Winner, Loser In Pennsylvania Primary

Shown above, casting his ballot with his wife, Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania yesterday. Gov. George H. Earle won the nomination for U. S. senator. At the right is Senator Joseph Guffey, Democratic boss of Pennsylvania, who backed Thomas Kennedy, CIO-supported Democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, who was beaten by Jones, and whose defeat weakened Guffey's hold on the Pennsylvania political machine. Guffey is shown as he cast his ballot yesterday in Pittsburgh's east end.

Renames 207 Teachers and 11 Principals

School Board Approves List, Delays Action on General Pay Boost.

Appointment of 207 teachers and 11 principals in Mansfield schools for the 1938-39 term at the present salary schedule was approved last night by the board of education.

All of the principals in the school system were reappointed by Supt. W. L. Miller and approved by the board. Miller said, however, that he would not assign principals and teachers to schools until later in the summer.

While the board considered a $100 increase in the maximum salaries, which would affect all principals and teachers, Supt. Miller recommended that the matter be continued until more funds are available.

The present maximum for high school instructors is $2,100; junior high school, $1,800, and elementary schools, $1,700.

125 Get Increments.

Under the present salary schedule, however, about 125 teachers whose pay is below maximum salary figures will be granted increments ranging up to $100 each per year, according to recommendations of the superintendent.

The total will amount to approximately $12,000 per year, with only $4,000 of that amount payable in 1938. The increase is provided for in the new appropriation.

Principals who received new contracts were: Jesse Beer, Senior high school; H. J. Dotson, John Simpson junior high school; Glenn G. Rohleder, Hedges school; C. C. Secrist, Brinkerhoff school; Roy Spetka, Bushnell school; Dean G. Rex, Carpenter school; E. W. Kissel, Newman school; George W. Taylor, Prospect school; W. A. Freeman, Western Avenue school; Glen L. Robinson, West Fifth school, and C. A. Divelbiss, head teacher at the Woodland school.

Supervisors reappointed were: Miss Helen E. Hartman, elementary music; Miss Florence Robison, art; Miss Dora McLeod, primary department; S. K. Jorgensen, director of orchestras, and A. LeMoine Derr, vocal music at Luxury Airliner Traveled 50 Miles, Then Crashed and Burned, Searchers Say.

IN AIR FOR 30 MINUTES

Short Flight Disaster Kills 4 Women, 2 Children, 3 Men in California Hills.

BURBANK, Cal.—(INS)—Its nine passengers, including four women and two children, dead in the charred and twisted wreckage, the $88,000 Lockheed luxury airliner which disappeared Monday was found today on a mountainside less than 50 miles from its starting point at union air terminal here.

The plane was found by a farmer on the side of Mt. McDill, one mile north of the Mint canyon highway. Forest rangers, headed by Dan Barnes, Mint canyon fire warden, confirmed the find.

Lost In Fog.

Reports received here indicated the plane, apparently lost in the fog which blanketed this whole area Monday afternoon, crashed into the mountainside northeast of Burbank and burned not more than 30 minutes after it took off from the Burbank field.

The giant transport was not on a regular beamed passenger route but was being ferried to St. Paul, Minn., to be delivered to Northwest Airlines. All of the persons aboard were either employes or relatives of Lockheed and Northwest officials.

Those on the plane were: Pilot Sid Willey, 32, test pilot for the Lockheed Aircraft corporation, Burbank; Fred Whittemore, 42, St. Paul, vice-president in charge of operations of Northwest Airlines; Henry W. Salisbury, 29, engineer for Northwest Airlines, St. Paul, who had been supervising construction details of the plane; Mrs. Salisbury, 25, and the two Salisbury children, Judy, 4, and Richard, 2.

Reliefers Boo Davey As State Quiz Opens

'Sit-Down' Continues In Cleveland Council Chamber; House Committee Check's City's Finances, Goes to Homes of Needy.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—Three sub-groups of the Ohio house of representatives 11-man relief-investigating committee today plunged into their work here as between 100 and 125 determined relief clients continued their possession of council chamber in city hall.

A sub-committee headed by Samuel A. Anderson (D., Licking) met in relief headquarters for a general investigation of relief administration here; a second, chairmaned by Carl F. Wintzer (D., Auglaize), met in city hall to probe city finances, and a third, with James F. Coady (D., Franklin) as chairman, started an investigation of relief cases, picked at random from the city's files.

Sleep, Play Cards.

The sitdowners in council chamber, fed more or less regularly by workers' organizations, slept or played cards following a noisy demonstration in which CIO and Workers' Alliance leaders spoke and skits satirizing the state administration and attacking Governor Davey were presented.

Several of the legislators left their committee meeting to look in on the demonstration, each part of which was wildly applauded by the crowd in council chamber, which at one time last night numbered 500.

Although they booed the names of Governor Davey, Mayor Harold H. Burton and John W Bricker, probable Republican nominee for governor, the relief clients cheered Assistant City Welfare Director Frank Bubna when he told them

DEBATE ACTION

Congress Leaders Would Block Rail Loans Because of Cut.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Congressional leaders today considered withdrawal of legislation to loan $300,000,000 to the railroads unless the carriers abandon plans for a 15 per cent wage cut.

Wagner will confer with congressional leaders, representatives of railroad labor and management, and officials of the RFC in an effort to compromise the differences arising over the proposed wage reduction and avert a possible strike.

Cummings Orders Inquiry In Jersey City Free Speech Curb

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Cummings said today he had ordered a "thorough investigation" of the general situation in Jersey City where complaints charge that free speech has been denied.

The investigation is in charge of Assistant Atty. Gen. Brien McMahon, chief of the criminal division, Cummings said.

At his press conference, the attorney general asserted that he considered it would be "improper" to investigate Norman Thomas' charge that he had been kidnaped by Jersey City policemen because Thomas already had begun legal action.

Cummings added, however, that the department would seek to determine if any persons in Jersey City were being deprived of civil rights guaranteed by federal law.

The attorney general said the inquiry was being made at the request of many persons who had sent complaints to the White House and the justice department. He said neither President Roosevelt nor Postmaster General Farley was among those suggesting the investigation.

"We are proceeding on the general theory," Cummings said, "that the department of justice likes to keep up to date on all events and if possible a jump ahead."

ROOSEVELT TVA MOVE REVERSED

Probers Order Records Bared After Morgan Charges He Was Refused Access.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Arthur E. Morgan, deposed chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, told congressional investigators today that President Roosevelt had "for all practical purposes" excluded him from access to TVA records.

His request that the joint congressional investigating committee ask the TVA board to give him access to the agency's records was unanimously granted by the committee.

The action was taken immediately after a unanimous vote to begin the investigation of TVA at "the earliest date practicable" by hearing charges and countercharges of former Chairman Morgan and Directors David Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan.

In a memorandum which Chairman Donahey (D., O.) distributed to committee members, Arthur Morgan asserted, "through his endeavor to remove me from office, the president has for practical purposes excluded be from access to such (TVA) records."

Also in the memorandum, which Donahey said was presented to him by Dr. Morgan yesterday, were copies of correspondence in which the former chairman asked

GOOD AND BAD!

Westinghouse Pays 3% Bonus, Trims Salaries 10%.

Bad news mingled with good for Westinghouse employes today.

Dispatches from Pittsburgh, company headquarters, announced a three per cent payment to all employes under the company's adjusted compensation plan. It will amount to $180,000. Last month, the addition was one per cent.

Then came the bad news—announcement of a 10 per cent reduction in pay, effective June 1, for the company's 13,000 salaried workers, including executives Workers on an hourly rate will not be affected, and the adjusted compensation plan will remain in effect.

About 600 salaried employes in the Mansfield plant will be affected by the pay cut, officials here said.

President George Bucher, announcing the reduction, said it was due to "present general downward changes and the fact that our volume of business is below that of a year ago."

She was vivacious and talented, friends said, and had shared a luxurious apartment with three other young women. They were in the living room with a guest when she killed herself. From them, police learned what had happened.

Before she died she pressed to her lips the diamond ring she wore on her left hand.

"Tell Stony to come and see me," she said. But she died before her friends could locate him.

Frank M. Weaver, 28, a University of Wisconsin graduate, told police that she telephoned nim last night. He said they had been keeping company for about a year but had quarreled.

Father Who Returned to Face 'Music,' Told to Get a Job

"Get work if you can; that's what you need," Judge C H Huston advised Orval Oyster, 32, Mansfield father of two small children, this morning when he appeared in common pleas court to plead innocent to an indictment charging him with abandoning his wife and children.

Oyster, who left Mansfield last September, worked his way back from Los Angeles, Calif, to face the abandoning charge. His voluntary return saved the county about $400.

It required less than five minutes for the court to hear Oyster's plea, made through Atty. George W Biddle, and to continue the case until the week of May 30. Oyster's $750 bond, under which he obtained his freedom after returning here, was continued by the court.

Atty. Biddle told the court that Oyster had a good chance to get a job and is willing to support his family when he is able.

Oyster kept his promise to return to Mansfield to face the court charge after he was held one night in the county jail at Los Angeles last month. The California authorities advised Sheriff E. P. Long that Oyster was in custody there, but released their prisoner before the Richland county sheriff could start west after him.

Oyster said he made the trip home in his automobile with $7 in his pockets, earning gasoline and meals by working for farmers and at filling stations.

Popularity Not Matter Of Years

By VIRGINIA LEE

So many little girls who are very, very unhappy, write to me, so I am glad to see Marjorie Hillis, author of "Live Alone and Like It" and "Orchids on Your Budget," has a word of comfort for young folk who are passing through that very trying time (for most)—their teens. This, in part, is what she says in Good Housekeeping magazine:

"One of the most frequently met bits of misinformation I know of is that you have the time of your life in your teens.

"The truth is, that the teens are often a very uncomfortable period. You may have a lovely flush of youth in your cheeks, to be sure, and an enviably slim figure and boundless energy and enthusiasm. Then, again, you may have bumps on your face and the gawkiness of a colt, and all sorts of unfortunate notions about what to do with the energy and enthusiasm.

"Fortunately, the teens, like any other group of years in your life, are just one stage among many. It may be a good stage or a bad one. The point is that the fact that it's good or bad doesn't mean that the next period, or the one after that, will match it. As a matter of fact, it's far more likely that neither will.

Belle May Slip.

"Often the girl who has everything at 14—looks, beaux and a marvelous time—while her schoolmates still have braces on their teeth and parents who think they are too young for dates, has begun to slip at 18. Her style of dressing, which was so much smarter than her schoolmates' in the beginning, looks cheap, and she's been around enough to be blase and to expect more in the way of entertainment than young men of the right age are usually ready to supply. The girl who is just beginning to have a whirl has a distinct advantage over her.

"Even if you don't have a whirl at 18, it's no sign that you won't at 25 or 30, or even 40. Popularity is not like a talent for singing or sculpture—something with which you are or are not born and which you can or cannot develop to a high point. Practically anybody can learn to be popular, with a little intelligent application."

There now, girls and boys, you who are so lonely and do not know how to make friends—especially of those of the opposite sex. I have said over and over in these columns, that part of your trouble is your youth, and that if you persevere and don't pity yourselves too much, you will have friends later on. Miss Hillis only says it more attractively than I have.

Why I knew a girl who went to college, and in her freshman year she was a flop. The boys said she was homely—much to my annoyance because I thought she was a swell kid. Then in her second year, the boys seemed to suddenly discover her and rushed her. She didn't understand it herself. She has been married for some time now and has a most devoted husband.

So if this year isn't your popular one, and you have all sorts of troubles, why next year may be the one, or the next or the next. You can always look forward to its coming and work for it.

J. D.: Your girl friend's love for you cannot be very deep and loyal or she wouldn't want to go out with other fellows when she could be with you. She evidently likes you, but is not content to make any sacrifices for you, such as giving up a good time to be with you.

If she cared as a sweetheart should, she would prefer to go with you even if you have little money to spend, rather than to go to expensive places with others. There are many pleasant things a young couple who care for each other can do without spending money. Just being together is a pleasure in itself.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

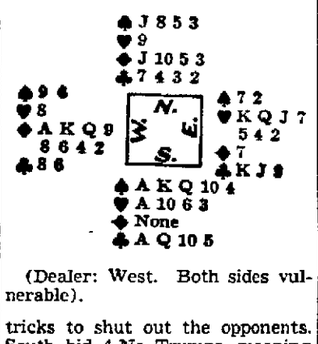
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOWING HIS TEMPER

WHEN A brilliant player happens to be temperamental as well, fireworks may be put on display. The same mental capacities which steer him to soundness most of the time can go haywire and result in all manner of bizarre bids and plays. Even the presence of kibitzers does not necessarily act as a deterrent, but may prove a temptation to such an artistic type.

West opened this deal with a pre-emptive bid of 4-Diamonds, which East properly passed, knowing his partner was showing a hand worthless except at diamonds and also was overbidding about two tricks to shut out the opponents. South bid 4-No Trumps, meaning this in the conventional and artificial sense employed by many players to force a take-out into some other suit, since a double of a pre-empt is used by them as intended to penalize the bid. North thought South meant his bid literally, however, so passed, which infuriated South.

When West led the diamond K, South decided to get fancy. He discarded the spade A on that trick, next the K on the diamond Q and the spade Q on the diamond A. West then refused to lead into dummy's good diamond J, switching instead to the heart 8, won by the A. South saw that he had to win two finesses in clubs, so needed two entries to dummy. His only chance for these was first to finesse the spade 8, which worked. After cashing the diamond J and finessing the club 10, he overtook the spade 10 with the J, cashed two more spades, won another club finesse, then took in the A and 5 of clubs.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable).

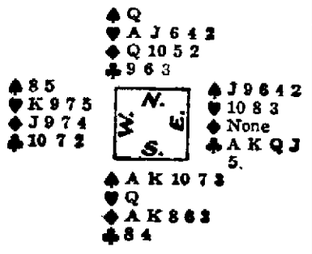
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable).

How would you play this deal for 5-Diamonds after West leads the club 10?

Waxy Base Preserves Nail Beauty

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

HERE at last is an innovation that will be welcomed by all of you that long for strong, well-groomed nails. It is no long drawn out series of treatments that you will as likely as not give up or forget before you have ever gotten the nails of your desire. Quite the reverse. It can be done with only a few minutes tacked on to the time you are accustomed to take when you give yourself a manicure or have one at a beauty shop. And you can get the same treatment either at your own hands or those of your favorite manicurist.

It is a new waxy base that is applied before the nail polish. This preparation has been known in Hollywood for sometime, but only in the last month has the rest of the world known about the wonderful results that it has had.

The protective wax in the base helps to prevent splitting and cracking of the nail. It forms a hard, even coating, encouraging the nail to grow out without breaking. So it is a real joy if you are one of the ones who have to bang a typewriter for a living or do lots of work around the house.

If you are giving yourself a home manicure you proceed in the usual way. After you have removed your old polish, cleaned your nails with warm water, a nail brush and soap, shaped your nails with your emery board, pushed back your cuticle and removed the dry dead skin, you are ready to put on the wax. The only thing to think of when you apply the base, is to cover the nail tips and leave a narrow line bare all around the base and sides of the nail. That's so you will be sure to cover the edges of the undercoat when you come to put on polish.

Easy To Apply.

This preparation whips over the nail as easily as polish does. Let it dry and then put on your polish. It doesn't take long to dry, and there is no feeling of sitting around all day impatiently waiting for your nails to dry.

Because of the hard surface the undercoat provides, polish wear is improved. It acts as a polish foundation, filling up any ridges or unevenness in the nail so that polish will flow on smoothly and adhere evenly. And it doesn't streak.

You can wear as many coats of polish over the base as you wish, but it is a very good idea to put on at least two. If your nails are long enough, put a little of the base under the nail as well.

When polish requires repairing, simply apply another coat over the first, and your base can be left on indefinitely. Regular lubricant polish remover takes it off.

This little aid will make your manicure stay with you day in and day out. It will be a life-saver to those of you who have thin, brittle nails.

Today's Recipes.

French Toast—Use one beaten egg, one-half cup milk, a little salt and pepper, bread. Mix egg and milk, season with salt and pepper. Cut bread in halves, dip in egg mixture and fry in fat until light brown. Drain on soft paper and serve with syrup or jelly.

Hot Ginger Bread with Cheese—Four tablespoons shortening, one half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one-half cup molasses, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda, one and three-fourths cups flour, one cup cottage cheese. Cream the shortening and sugar together, add the well-beaten egg. Mix the milk and the molasses and add alternately with the remaining ingredients which have been mixed and sifted together. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Remove from the oven, spread while hot with the cheese and serve at once.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

There was more than anxiety, there was something akin to fear in my husband's voice as he asked me how long I intended to stay at the farm whither I was bound to welcome home the children from the camp in the White mountains.

Whatever it was that was troubling him, it gave him a vague naive resemblance to a small boy fearing that his mother was going to leave him alone to face some dreaded experience.

"Not longer than two days, I am sure," I said. "I must hurry back to Mary, you know. I shall reach there quite late this afternoon, and as Katherine and the children will not arrive until late afternoon tomorrow, I can hardly leave until the following morning."

"You will surely come back then?" he asked eagerly.

"Of course, unless some unforeseen accident should happen."

Tone Betrays Him.

"Don't say a fool thing like that," he adjured me sharply, and his tone and words betrayed the nervous tension which was his

I made him no answer, and after a half second's pause he went on slowly, uncertainly, as if not quite sure of his own phrasing.

"Tell me, will there be anything to interfere with your being in the city next Wednesday?"

Wednesday! The word caromed around my brain, and finally came to a resting place. Wednesday, if the mental calendar I hastily checked off was correct, was the day the mysterious woman had told her gangster companion she would be at the French restaurant "with or without the Dicky-bird," and that there would be "plenty happening."

Queen May Arrive.

"Not unless Harry and Lillian bring Queen Olga and her daughter down that day," I said. "I must be there to welcome them. I have not broken the news to Mary yet that I shall have to go to the farm once more before rehearsals start, but it is a task I shall have to face as soon as I get back."

"To the hot place with Mary!" Dicky said with quick irascibility. "It's something a damned sight more important than being on hand to welcome a couple of stranded feminine royalties. It's a nice gesture, and ordinarily I'd be for it. But if their arrival happens to be scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday of next week, I'm asking you to put Katherine and Mother on the welcoming committee, and you stay in the city. I may not need you at all, and on the other hand, I may want to put in an SOS call for you any minute, and I want you at the hotel so I can get hold of you at a minute's notice."

Gives Promise.

There was something in his voice which forbade questioning, but there was something else, the appeal of a man to his woman for help in an emergency. Everything else dropped away from me, and I put out my hand timidly and touched his.

"Of course I'll make it a point to be in the city those three days. I'll get in touch with Lil and Harry right away, and see if the arrival of Olga and Olina may not be speeded up or delayed, so that I can be out there before Tuesday, or else after Thursday."

"That's my own girl," he said. "I'm the original Gadarene swine, but perhaps some day I can make all this up to you"

I knew that only his horror of sentiment in public places kept him from taking me into his arms, and my heart sang with the knowledge that no matter what the "jam" in which he was involved, his heart was still mine But the only words I could find were those of a question.

"Are you coming out to see the children, Dicky?"

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 19.

JUDGING BY the lunar transits operating on this day, there may be lucrative financial transactions, with some cherished plans going over with the aid of influential persons, with whom diplomacy, strategem or undercover agreements may have to be employed. It might be well to be vigilant in subtle affairs and not be left "holding the bag," particularly with strangers or persons not too scrupulous.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a prosperous and interesting year if he will exercise discretion and sound judgment. It may be necessary to resort to undercover agreements, diplomacy or connivance rather than direct and open measures. But new adventures and enterprises should flourish and employment may be favored, possibly by unseen forces or secrecy.

A child born on this day may be capable, ambitious and shrewd, particularly versatile in subtlety, diplomacy or hidden resources. These should advance its prestige and position in life, attracting to it important persons with peculiar or secret support of the mighty.

One pound of granulated sugar equals two cupfuls. One pound of powdered or confectioners' sugar sugar equals 2½ cupfuls.

Broken walnuts mixed with hot maple sirup makes a delicious sauce for vanilla ice cream.

It's thrilling to pack so much loveliness into a bit of waste space. Our diagram shows a cross-section of an easily-constructed rock garden.

Build a small mound against fence or side of house. Make bottom layer cinders; next layer, sand mixed with stones; top layer, some of your best garden soil—black in diagram. Then thrust rocks into mound's surface tilting them all at same angle for proper drainage.

Sink an old tub or half-barrel into the ground for a pool. Conceal edges with stones.

Our 32-page booklet gives clear step-by-step directions for all kinds of fascinating rock gardens and pools. Plants for sunny spots and shady ones.

Send 10c for your copy of "How to Make Rock Gardens and Lily Pools" to The Mansfield News-Journal, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of booklet.

Practically all house plants can be propagated from cuttings or slips which may be taken from old plants that have lost their attractiveness. These cuttings can be rooted best in clean sand although a jar of water is frequently used with success.

Try mixing ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water.

1938 ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS OF COUNTY POSTED

Soils Conservation Program Calls for 18 Per Cent Cut in 'Cash' Crops.

Acreage allotments under the 1938 federal soils conservation program for Richland county had been posted today for inspection by county farmers at the soils conservation on East Third street and the county agent's office in the courthouse.

Listed by townships, the allotments are for all of the 3,471 farms in the county, although only about half of the farm owners have contracted for participation in the crop reduction program.

The listings show the total acreage of each farm, the total crop depleting acreage permitted under the program and the total corn acreage allowed each farmer.

Wheat Cut Larger.

Reductions for the county generally are about 18 per cent from last year for all "cash" crops, while the wheat acreage is expected to be considerably higher. The program affects corn, wheat, potatoes, oats, rye and other crops suitable for quick sale.

The allocation lists, which were posted by Guy Taylor, county conservation chairman, show Madison township with 304 individual farms to top the other 17 townships in the county.

Washington township is second with 278 farms, Jefferson township third with 270 farms, and Springfield township fourth with 267. Madison township's farms, however, are small as compared with others in the county.

Total farms in other townships include:

Worthington, 238; Monroe, 230; Sharon, 205; Jackson, 193; Franklin, 191; Cass, 183; Plymouth, 179; Mifflin, 161; Weller, 166; Bloominggrove, 157; Troy, 151; Butler, 150; Perry, 112, and Sandusky, 106.

BANS FISHING IN RESERVOIR

State Orders Affect Charles Mill Dam, Black Fork Creek.

A ban on fishing in the Charles Mill reservoir and adjacent water in Black Fork creek for an indefinite period had been announced today by the state department of conservation.

The Black Fork waters, covering a wide area in the eastern part of Richland county, will be stocked with fish this summer, and the order will serve to protect the young fish, conservation officials said.

After the ban is lifted, fishing will be permitted only at specified seasons of the year, it was indicated.

DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION FOR LIQUOR HABIT

A doctor's prescription, used for years for those addicted to the use of alcohol, is now offered to the public as Alcoban. It is not habit-forming and can be taken in liquor, tea, coffee, food, or any other liquid, with or without the user's knowledge. Unable to Eat Without Pain. Now Enjoying Best of Health

How Mr. G., who for three years was unable to eat without pain, who was ill from attacks of nervousness followed by extreme vomiting and diarrhea, came back to resume the business he had been ordered to abandon, is another startling testimonial to the amazing work of Mrs. Alberty, originator of Alberty Food whose almost miraculous work in this entire section has won the praise of thousands.

"I was down to 125," says Mr. G., "and ordered to rest in bed when I heard of Alberty Food. I gained 51 pounds on my regular. Mr. G. still enjoys the best of health.

A Captain of a fire department reported relief from stomach distress and other complications. Others report an increase in weight, strength and vitality. Mrs. E. writes, "I am the woman who last year at this time was desperate—I had given up all desire to live. I heard of Alberty Food. It pulled me out of my condition—the change was like a miracle. I gained 40 pounds in 3 months. Last August I weighed 70 pounds. In six weeks, after taking Alberty Food, I was able to go to the store." Another lady reports great improvement in the health of her father who was 81 years old.

Probers Charge Some Workers Thrive, Others Just Exist Through Policies.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The senate graft investigating committee, in its third partial report, today criticized the state administration for increasing the salary of Mrs. Myrna Smith, secretary to Governor Davey, and for allegedly giving double salaries to her husband and brother-in-law.

The committee report said the administration policies have meant "abundance for some and poverty for others," and contended the senate was "justified in not having voted additional millions asked for by Governor Davey."

Gets $1,500 Increase.

The report cited the increase from $5,000 to $6,500 a year in Mrs. Smith's salary and also said her husband, Barton Smith, has drawn a double salary in the industrial relations department.

A brother-in-law, Harry Cole, also draws two salaries in two divisions of one department, according to the report, which did not specify the department.

Barton Smith has drawn since September, 1937, a $133 monthly salary from one division of the industrial relations department and a $200 monthly salary from another division, it said. It charged that Smith previously enjoyed other salary increases.

Cole formerly received $125 per month for one job and the same amount for another, the committee added, but in March, 1937, one salary was raised to $175 a month, giving him since then two salaries totaling $300 a month.

"Here are three in a family circle—all on the payroll," the report stated. "The record is replete with such instances, but it is hardly necessary to cite more."

Recalls Dayton Case.

The report recalled the disclosure that Willard V. Archer held a Noble county liquor agency while serving as liquor inspector, and estimated that he received $12,298.20 in 22 months. The administration subsequently withdrew his agency.

The committee charged finally that Archer, "like scores of other liquor inspectors were taken off their regular routes to do political work of weeks" in the 1936 gubernatorial campaign.

Puts Picture of John Sherman on Air Mail Covers

As a gesture toward his friends, and a tribute to John Sherman, Mansfield's greatest statesman, James M. Dickson, Woodland Farms, has had an unusual cover printed for National Air Mail week.

On the usual red and blue-edged envelopes, Dickson has had printed a picture of the late Mr. Sherman, with the inscription, "John Sherman, May 10, 1823-Oct. 22, 1900. United States Senator, Secretary of State."

At the top of the envelope is the inscription "Mansfield, Ohio, Home of John Sherman."

Dickson plans to send the covers to collector friends, he says.

He selected Sherman's picture because National Air Mail week is close to the birthday anniversary of the famous Mansfielder whom he thinks deserves the tribute as a "great man."

Amendment Snags Threaten Recovery Bill

Up and Down THE STREET

An "irate father" spent most of last evening trying to reach members of the board of education to give them "a piece of his mind." It seems that his son, a student at Senior high school, asked for money to buy a slide rule at the school, and when he showed the rule to his father, the latter spied "Made in Japan" on it, and, in his own language he was "fit to be tied." "I'm going to tell members of the board of education," he said, "that a swell way to raise a million dollars for new school buildings is to buy materials in Japan."

Mrs. Louis Olson, Park avenue west road, who spent the winter at the Olson ranch near Phoenix, and who is now in Gvaymas, Sonora, Mexico, will have a real fish story to tell when she returns home within a few weeks. She was one of a party of five passengers and three boatmen on a private fishing schooner in the Gulf of California last Friday when three marlins were hooked and landed. They used 12-inch mackerel for bait. The largest fish weighed 200 pounds and the other two 135 and 124 pounds, respectively. It took an hour and a half to land the big fellow. And though a single marlin sometimes weighs a thousand pounds, the amateur fishermen were pretty elated over 459 pounds of fish in a day.

Why the 46 stars in the American flag that hangs in the office of Mayor Claude M. Hunter? A staunch Democrat, the mayor had an explanation today. "That is what is known as a Roosevelt flag," Hunter said. "Only the states which the president carried are included. Maine and Vermont are not represented." (In 1936 Roosevelt won all states but Vermont and Main. Ed.)

JAPAN STARTS SUCHOW DRIVE

Troops Advance on Key City Under Protective Fire by Artillery Units.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — Japanese troops attacked the outer defenses of Suchow today under cover of a terrific barrage of artillery.

In preparation for the final attack, Japanese infantrymen had stormed the reclining Ox mountain on the city's western outskirts as the main army approached from the west. Advancing behind the fire of artillery ranged in the western hills, the Japanese attacked the mountain with bayonets in face of direct machine gun fire.

Japanese admitted that the Chinese fought bitterly, protecting the retreat of the Suchow garrison.

Japanese airplanes turned their attention to the Chinese still reported in great numbers northeast of Suchow, and sought by bombing them to clear a path for a Japanese column in the Taierchwang sector.

The Japanese were attacking Suchow with a deliberation which revealed their determination to take no chances in this final assault on the city that had been their objective for months and which had cost them the most humiliating defeats a Japanese army ever had suffered.

For more than 24 hours artillery, including mountain guns which arrived west of the city and were dragged by hand up the mountain slopes, had bombarded Suchow without pause, to complete its ruin started by airplanes.

SENATE GROUP SEEKS TO END HEARING TODAY

Southern Senator Puts Farm Relief Issue in Dispute Over Spend-Lend Plan.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Driving to close hearings today on the $3,179,000,000 spend-lend bill, a senate appropriations subcommittee faced a mountain of amendments, including one to distribute about $200,000,000 to wheat, cotton and corn farmers as a contribution toward parity.

Senator Russell (D) of Georgia, tossed the farm relief issue into the general squabble over spending and lending. He claimed the farmers will face "horrible destitution" next fall and winter.

Maps Stiff Fight.

"If the committee doesn't adopt my amendment," Russel said, "I am going to re-offer it on the senate floor when the bill is up for consideration. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has told the appropriations committee that distribution of this money in the farm belt will do more to accelerate all lines of business than any other feature of the bill. I agree with him."

Russell disclosed agriculture department experts were assisting him in drafting his amendment. Wallace, while forecasting "terrible conditions" in the farm belt next fall, has not been given "clearance" by the budget bureau to voice an official opinion on the Russel proposal.

The Georgian said he was planning to offer his amendment in alternate forms. Under one the the money would be earmarked from WPA and PWA funds in the bill, while the other form would be a straight addition to the appropriation in the measure

To give the wheat, cotton and corn farmers bounties on their crops and thus equalize their prices with the prices of things they buy, would cost the government close to $1,500,000,000, it was estimated. Russell's plan would stipulate distribution of the government's contribution in the proportion each of the three commodities is below parity.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Mussolini's Subsidized Papers Indignant Over Slur on His Bold Troops

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—There is great indignation in Rome against Mr. Ernest Hemingway, the fur-bearing author, because of certain remarks which he wrote from Spain about the valor of Mussolini's invincible Black Shirts.

Mr. Hemingway wrote that the conquering legions of the Duce marched on two-way feet, or words to that effect, and were faster in reverse than forward. He was referring particularly to their conduct at Guadalajara, where the Duce's indomitable hosts executed a spirited advance to the rear and suffered many casualties from trampling.

It appears that combat experience developed in Mussolini's irresistibles a peculiarity which no other great military captain has had to consider as a hazard of war. In most invincible legions the front rank is regarded as the post of maximum peril and highest honor. But at Guadalajara, when Mussolini's brave Black Shirts encountered the enemy and started their charge for the rear; the men in the rear rank found themselves overwhelmed by the impetuous dash of their comrades in the forward positions, who were climbing up their backs in their haste and shouting the Black Shirt war cry of "Get out of the way and let a man run that kin run!"

Mr. Hemingway's description of this engagement was written against the background of his own experience in the war to end war, in which he served with the Italians and observed the great Caporetto run. He thought the Black Shirts were even faster in retreat than the weary and half-hearted soldiers of the royal army of those days.

The Fascist journalists of Rome seem to have detected a derogatory note in Mr. Hemingway's tribute to the Black Shirts' footwork, however, and some of them have proposed that he throw away his pen, or typewriter, and meet the Black Shirts personally on the field of honor.

Due allowance must be made for the excitability and self-interest of the Roman Fascist journalists, who receive a subsidy from the Duce and therefore are always overeager to sense affront and challenge the world.

They obviously must know, however, that Mr. Hemingway is now up in his 40's, that he weighs about 200 pounds and that he has not been keeping in athletic trim. Any fair sportsman would be found to admit that Mr. Hemingway, at his age and weight, would have no chance of catching the Duce's invincible legions.

If the Roman journalists had proposed a meeting between Mr. Hemingway and the Black Shirts in some bullring or stockade, Mr. Hemingway probably would have accepted with alacrity. But in open country, and especially on a downhill terrain, the contest would be too one-sided. The Duce's heroes would run Mr. Hemingway ragged.

Mr. Hemingway wrote another thought which also seems to have been misconstrued by the Roman journalists as a dirty dig at the fearless legions. He said that whenever a fearless Black Shirt falls down and is trampled while advancing to the rear, the sight of blood arouses the tenderest filial feelings in the conquering hero and sets him to crying, "Mamma mia! Mamma mia!" in the night. He suggested, in a respectful way, that Mussolini ought to send their mammas with them when they go out to execute his inflexible will. Rather unexpectedly, this, too, has enraged the Roman journalists.

At the risk of the same displeasure that Mr. Hemingway now suffers, one is tempted to propose a new war song for the invincible legions. Roughly, the theme would be: "Oh, Mamma! Oh, Mamma! That Spaniard's Here Again."

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Charles Boyer was giving Leonid Kinsky a colossal, well-timed beating-up. Kinsky, Boyer had just guessed, was a low informer trying to trap him for the French police. As a prosperous jewel thief, safe in the Casbah or native section of Algiers where French police didn't prosper, Boyer didn't want to be lured outside. So he was fixing up this Kinsky, practically choking a confession out of him.

The only trouble—from Boyer's point of view—was that he didn't want to hurt Kinsky really. After all, Boyer knew it was only a movie named "Algiers" and Kinsky, a Russian for all his pantaloons and fez, wasn't a bad sort.

From Kinsky's point of view, I suspect, the only trouble was that John Cromwell, directing, kept showing Boyer how to make it real. Between Boyer's choking and Cromwell's shaking, Kinsky should have rattled and come apart. But he didn't. He smiled and tried to make it more realistic. That boy'll get ahead.

And then there was that beautiful-eyed, nut-brown native girl who lurked in the background of the fight. That would be blond Sigrid Gurie, in a wig and native costume, very gypsyish She hadn't anything to do but lurk, and pretty soon she just looked bored.

After seeing it all through six rehearsals—and before I came they'd been rehearsing two hours already—I didn't blame her. On the screen this will be exciting, but on the set it's just one damthing after another—all wrong.

On the outdoor set of "The Valley of the Giants" burly red-haired Charlie Bickford took up our theme, all unprompted. Bickford was bored, and said so. He was getting tired, and said so.

"It's not the work," he said, "it's the ennui that wears you down. Most of the time you sit around on the set waiting to get in front of the camera. Then you walk in and do the same scene 20 times. You're tired out by the end of the day. I've got a plan, though.

"I read my script, learn my lines, figure out what I'm going to do. Then I stop thinking about the picture unless I'm in front of the camera. I sit and think of the things I'd rather be doing. I think, how I'd rather be up on my ranch, or at the garage, or at the mine. I think about my outside interests. The only time to be an actor is in front of the camera."

TITLE FIGHT HITS HIGHEST ADVANCE SALE IN MITT HISTORY.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK — (NS)—Thirty-five days out from what apparently is to be a somewhat bizarre and complicated evening, the Schmeling-Louis heavyweight championship fight hit the highest advance sale in the history of boxing today, as actual cash-on-the-counter money passed the $200,000 mark and began rolling on toward a quarter of a million. It won't need wheels, at this rate, to roll right up and over a million and a half, to a record gate for a $30 "top."

Even Chicago, with the second showing of Tunney and Dempsey, wouldn't have done that at the price. Chicago, with twice the capacity of the Yankee stadium and a heavier tariff, didn't have much more than the change out of a quarter on hand, four weeks in front of its fight.

But the blokes are "buying" this one as though they thought the supply wouldn't last—stolid, serious looking German-Americans from the Yorkville section and hot sports from Harlem, a volatile mixture, perhaps, for purposes of a prize fight like this. But they're laying down very reassuring and very real money—cash, or its equivalent, for the most part.

In this connection, one certified check was received today from a nationally known shipbuilder for $24,000, covering 800 ringside seats. Another for $12,000 came from a Philadelphia millionaire. A third, for $3,500, was a local order.

All they have to do is keep on that way, and they'll be standing them up on the rear ramps on the night of the fight. Provided, of course, the boxing commission will ride along with the idea in question and, if you knew the local boxing commission, you'd know that its attitude on anything is not open to forecast.

The only thing I can say is that sometimes it can be awfully tough on a semi-finalist from the Dyckman oval (only there isn't any Dyckman oval now) and awfully tender with a vulnerable and unattached dollar.

'Expanding' Ringside Area a Factor.

ONE FACTOR that may produce a bigger capacity than the house has been scaled for is that Promoter Jacobs has what is known as an "expanding" ringside area, which is nothing new. Mr. Rickard had an expanding ringside area at Chicago, with the result that, if some of the customers were any further away, they'd have been on the 50-yard line in Dyche stadium at Northwestern.

But Promoter Jacobs wouldn't do that. In the first place, he has a rising ringside layer which can't continue above the level of the bleacher seats, approximately ten feet. In the second place, he probably thinks Northwestern is a railroad.

Indians Advance On Idle Red Sox

Geygan to Pilot Fremont Club

Chappie Geygan of Columbus, former Boston Red Sox and American association star who piloted the Sandusky and Marion clubs in 1936 and 1937, was appointed manager of the Fremont Ohio State league team yesterday.

The Ohio State league season opens today with Fremont at Tiffin and Fostoria at Findlay.

Whitehill Allows Four Hits as Tribe Beats A's, 5-1, at League Park.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—A 38-year-old veteran who has been an American league star for 14 seasons, today pitched the Cleveland Indians back to within one-half game of the league lead.

Earl Whitehill, the ancient southpaw in question, made his first start in three weeks yesterday and hurled the Indians to a 5 to 1 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Whitehill has been on the sidelines with an injured side.

Whitehill permitted the Athletics only four hits as he hung up his third straight victory of the season.

The veteran was off to a shaky start. Two walks, a hit batsman and a single gave Philadelphia a run in the first inning with only one out. Then Earl Brucker hit into a double play to end the inning. From then on Whitehill pitched air-tight ball.

In the final eight innings the portside ace issued only one base on balls and two of the hits he gave up came in the ninth inning.

George Caster, young right-hander, was in the box for Philadelphia. He blanked the Tribe for three innings, but in the fourth Cleveland hopped on him for a pair of counters. The final three runs came in the seventh when Jeff Heath tripled, Earl Averill walked and then Hal Trosky homered over the screen in right center field.

Lyn Lary, back at shortstop after a term on the bench because of his inaccurate throwing, handled seven chances in the field without a misplay. He made one hit in two trips to the plate.

Legion At Home

Durant's Men Open Season at Fairground Sunday With Ex-Indian's Club.

PILOT DEWEY DURANT and his American Legion baseballers were making ready today for their first Central Ohio league home appearance at the Fairground Sunday.

The Mansfield team's opening day opponent will be Logan, managed by Walter Miller, former Cleveland Indian moundsman.

Rained Out Sunday.

Durant's Legionnaires who lost to the Federal Glassmen in Columbus in their inaugural two weeks ago, were rained out at Coshocton Sunday.

The Mansfield pilot was disappointed over the failure to play Sunday as he considers his team is in need of additional competition before it will reach the form he desires.

However, he indicated that he is far from discouraged over the prospects this season. The club showed considerable promise in the one game it has played, and he believes it will develop into a strong title contender.

The younger recruits not only showed up well in the opener, but are displaying gradual improvement in workouts, Durant stated.

Durant believes Mansfield fans will enjoy watching the youngsters perform in fast company as all are products of the city sandlots.

The club is given balance by the older veterans, but Durant plans to favor the rookies in his attempt to construct a winner.

Choice Doubtful.

As Mansfield was unable to play Sunday, Durant was at a loss today to state who he would select for mound duty against the Logan club, which was materially strengthened by the addition of nine new players over the weekend.

Who Hanker to Smoke a Pipe

MEN: Complete smoking pleasure comes only from smoking fine tobacco, and starting under ideal conditions. Through this unusual offer we are introducing to you pipe smoking at its best.

Here's Our Offer

First: Trial Packets of each of the three styles of world-famous Edgeworth, wrapped in heavy foil. Edgeworth, famous for more than 35 years, has always contained only the finest tobacco leaf on the market. We gladly pay premium prices to give you a finer smoke. This costly leaf is then manufactured to the high Edgeworth standard—better tobacco, made to smoke cooler, means no tongue bite and permits you to enjoy fully its enhanced flavor, greater mildness and richer aroma.

Second: A handsome Signature Pipe (made by Linkman) that has already been "Broken In" (mechanically pre-smoked with genuine Edgeworth). It's sweet and gentle from the start. Then to give you an added interest in this pipe, we engrave your own personal signature in gold color on the stem. No pipe so personal.

Edgeworth always carries a written guarantee of satisfaction, or money refunded. Edgeworth is on sale everywhere in convenient pocket tins at 15¢.

Low Hit Contests Feature Games in Major Leagues

Bucs' Bauers Qualifies as Tough Luck Guy as He Drops a One-Hitter.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE National leaguers finally have found that new ball that was intended to help the pitchers so much this season.

Four games in the senior circuit produced the following: two one-hitters, one three and one four-hit hurling job, and some plain and fancy elbowing in the day's major contest, a 12-inning duel between the league-leading New York Giants and the challenging Chicago Cubs.

Pinch Hit Wins.

Although six flingers saw service before Sambo Leslie's pinch single in the 12th gave the Giants a 6-5 triumph, still it was a well pitched game. The first inning produced most of the scoring as the Cubs smacked Cliff Melton for two runs and the Giants came back to drive Tex Carleton off the hill with none out and tally three times.

Thereafter the silent man of the Giants avoided trouble except when Joe Marty parked a homer in the stands with two on base in the sixth and tied the score. Clay Bryant took Carleton's place and granted only six hits in 11⅓ innings.

Melton tired and loaded the sacks with none out in the twelfth but Dick Coffman staged a successful rescue. The Giants went on to win when Bryant let Mel Ott reach second on a pass and sacrifice. Leslie, sent in to hit against Jack Russell, came through with the blow that scored Ott.

The one-hit pitching feats came from Russ Bauers of Pittsburgh, who lost to the Boston Bees 1-0 and qualified for the second rank of hard-luck guys, and Fiddler Bill McGee of the St. Louis Cardinals, who beat Brooklyn 2-1.

Bauers took his place right behind the five pitchers in big league history who have pitched no-hit games for nine innings or more and lost them when a wild peg followed the only hit he granted and resulted in Boston's lone run. That was in the first inning. Elbie Fletcher led off with a walk; Debs Garms shot a single to center and when Lloyd Waner threw toward third, the ball bounced off Fletcher's back, allowing the runner to score. For the Bees Mill Shoffner pitched three-hit ball and escaped all trouble.

Spoils No-Hitter.

Goddy Rosen, who spoiled a no-hitter for Hal Schumacher earlier in the year, made the only Dodger hit off McGee and the usually reliable Joe Medwick was so surprised he let the ball roll past him and Rosen came home. McGee, who fanned nine, also made two of the Cards' hits off Luke Hamlin.

Paul Derringer pitched Cincinnati's Reds to a 13-1 victory, limiting the Phillies to four blows while his mates collected 22.

The American league also got a share of the fine flinging in its only game as Cleveland's Earl Whitehill set the Athletics down with four blows and beat them 5-1.

Five Old Marks Due To Fall In Fremont

Mansfield's Chief Record Threats Are Linta, Mile and 880-Yard Relay Teams.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

IF weather conditions are favorable and the track and field in such shape to permit record-breaking performances, a number of marks will be pared when the thin-clads of this district assemble in Fremont Saturday.

Mansfield's squad includes a few potential record smashers, and so do the lineups representing Sandusky and Fremont, which are regarded as the Red Streaks' chief rivals in the annual battle to determine the district champion.

At least five new records should be fashioned if conditions are favorable.

Mansfield's chief record threats are John Linta and the two relay teams. Linta has bettered the pole vault mark of 12 feet, six inches on several occasions this season, and the baton boys have been running in district record time in the majority of their meets.

Chesterfield Rogers of Sandusky might make a dent in the mile standard of 4:35, and Joe Reidy, Rogers' teammate, is likely to compile record-breaking time in the 880-yard run.

None of the other records will be seriously threatened, judging from the marks compiled to date by the athletes to compete in Fremont Saturday.

The records in the other events follow: shot put 47ft. 11in; 120-yard high hurdles, 15.1s; 100-yard dash, 9.9s; discus, 133ft, 9in; high jump, 5ft, 11in.; 440-yard dash, 51.3s; broad jump, 21ft, 6½in; 220-yard low hurdles, 24.6s; 220-yard, 23s.

Commercial Teams Open Season Today

Inaugural Games on Tap For Fans at 6 P. M.

Softball teams in the Y. M. C. A. Commercial league raise the curtain on the 1938 championship race at 6 p. m. today with four games.

Dominion Electric, defending champion, holds the spotlight on today's schedule as it goes into action against the Gulf Oils at North park.

While the champions are facing their first test, the All-State Tires meet Hartman Electrics at Liberty park, Nick's Place tackles Miller's Dairy at Prospect park and the Tappan Stoves battle at Johns park.

The Tires, Dairy and Electric clubs are new entries in the league this season.

One Hit Costs First Defeat

Three walks, two errors and a double by Tom Greulich with the bases loaded in the third enabled Lucas high school baseball club to tally five runs to hand Bellville its first setback of the season. The final score was 5 to 4.

Only one hit was permitted by Banks and Shreiff, who took over the hurling duties late in the third, the blow being allowed by Banks.

Lucas is host to Butler Thursday.

SLOW-MOVING RALLY RAISES STOCK PRICES

Analysts Rate Outcome of Pennsylvania Primaries as Factor in Climb.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — A slow-moving rally lifted stocks moderately today, interrupting the market's decline from the tops of the April and early May recovery.

Gains of fractions to more than a point were registered around the opening and extended a bit later but prices were shaved near the second hour.

Bonds also pointed a little higher and small gains outweighed losses in major commodities.

Results of the Pennsylvania primary elections drew wide comment in Wall Street and some analysts rated the outcome a factor in the rallying tendencies the share market displayed.

Possibility of changes in forthcoming third quarter steel prices remained a topic of conjecture in financial circles.

The Iron Age weekly summary said no general changes were expected in the steel price structure except for a new system of base prices and extras in flat rolled products resulting from the rapid growth of the continuous rolling method.

Weekly electric power figures made a somewhat better year-to-year showing.

SUIT HALTED

Payment of Part of Delinquent Taxes Brings Dismissal.

With the payment of delinquent taxes on two lots in Mansfield, foreclosure action against Wilmuth O. Borders, of New York, owner of the properties, had been dismissed today in common pleas court.

In the suit, County Treasurer John E. Kolb sought a total of $2,428 in delinquent levies due on 74 lots in the extreme west section of the city. Payments on the two lots represented about one-third of the total amount due, according to Atty. Marshall C. Moore, special assistant prosecutor in charge of tax cases.

HAS A REASON

OXFORD, Eng.—(AP)—Dr. A. E Barclay, of the Nuffield Institute of Medical Research, has a unique reason for disliking cats.

"Since I began my recent experiments on lung diseases," he explained to a meeting of the tuberculosis association, "my affection for cats—especially the black ones—has considerably lessened.

"Cats are no good for scientific research, because each gives different results from the others."

THEATER

SIGRID GURIE, who made her film debut in "Adventures of Marco Polo" plays a character role in "Algiers," that of a native girl. The leading feminine role is in the hands of another European transportation, Hedy Lemarr. The "foreign invasion" grows monthly in Hollywood. . . . Columbia Pictures has taken advantage of that squawk by independent exhibitors that the big stars are deadwood on the market. They plastered 250 28-sheets (huge posters) all over Hollywood and Los Angeles, which said: "Is It True What They Say About Katharine Hepburn?" It's a plug for her new picture, "Holliday." . . . For the first time a CCC camp will be used as the locale of a picture when Paramount makes "Prison Farm" at the CCC camp near Crestline, Cal.

"Merrily We Live."

Another comedy of the "mad" variety, which is running in a popular cycle just now, is "Merrily We Live" with Constance Bennett and Brian Aherne in the leading roles, supported by Patsy Kelly, Tom Brown, Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray, Ann Dvorak and others. The Kilbourne family is all right individually but collectively it is definitely "ska-rewy." The mother rehabilitates tramps and the oldest daughter is very dumb and beautiful. Into this mad household comes a novelist and playwright and because they all think he is just another of mother's tramps, they all try to get rid of him. Sensing an idea for a novel, he annexes himself to the family and the fun begins. "Merrily We Live" is booked for the last three days of the week at the Madison, starting tomorrow.

Bobby Goes Hawaiian.

Bobby Breen, the youngster with the "grown-up" voice, goes Hawaiian in his new picture, "Hawaii Calls," which the Ohio presents Thursday and Friday. Bobby stows away on a Pacific liner and finds adventure a-plenty on the islands. Juanita Quigley, the pretty youngster who will be remembered for her work in many shorts, is seen as the little girl who is kidnaped and rescued by the singing hero. Bobby sings several new songs, including the theme song, "Hawaii Calls," "Down Where the Trade Winds Blow," and the perennial favorite "Aloha." The picture was made from Don Blanding's "Stowaways In Paradise."

Bartholomew to Choose.

Freddie Bartholomew, the English youngster who took American film goers by storm with his first picture "David Copperfield," and who has held his place ever since despite bad publicity because of his family scrapping over his money, will make a momentous decision in two years. He is 14 now and when he is 16 it will be up to him to decide whether he wants to take out his first American citizenship papers or remain a subject of England. His guardian will permit the boy to choose for himself. Although she is raising him in an English background, he has adopted many American customs. One of his most popular pictures "The Devil Is A Sissy," is playing a return Mansfield engagement at the Majestic theater. Mickey Rooney and Jackie Cooper are co-starred with him. "Romance In The Dark," with Gladys Swarthout, John Boles and John Barrymore is also being shown.

Youthful Players.

The call to romance is amply answered by two pairs of young lovers in "Thrill of A Lifetime," which the Ritz is showing through tomorrow. Eleanore Whitney and Johnny Downs, Betty Grable and Lief Erickson make up a romantic foursome, with comedy provided by the Yacht Club boys, Ben Blue and Judy Canova. Set against the romantic background of a summer vacation camp, the film offers these youngsters—as well as the audience—the time-honored variety of sentiment and romance. Dorothy Lamour sings a specialty song in one sequence. The revival of Will Rogers' "Judge Priest" is the second feature, with Rochelle Hudson, Tom Brown, Anita Louise and Stepin Fetchit.

PICK MANSFIELD

Infantry Association to Meet Here in 1939.

Mansfield was chosen as the 1939 meeting place of the 146th Infantry association, at a recent meeting in Wooster. The 146th unit was formerly the old 8th Ohio and included Company M and the supply company of Mansfield.

Because of the reunion being held here next year, all officers elected for the ensuing year are from this city. J. Earl Ports was named president; Ralph Schad, vice president; H. E. Pollock, secretary; and A. L. Allen, Fred Birmelin and Charles Condon were elected to the executive committee.

About 250 attended the Wooster meeting and considerably more are expected here next year, Ports said.

Tappan Range In 'Merrily We Live' Film at Madison

The word "glamour" has been worn pretty thread bare as applied to the ladies of Hollywood, but a "glamorous kitchen" is something else again, and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer makes the phrase a reality in "Merrily We Live," starring Constance Bennett and Brian Aherne.

There is particular interest for Mansfielders in the "glamour kitchen," for three Tappan ranges are used in it, as well as three gas-using Electrolux refrigerators. Patsy Kelly, screen comedian, finds this all-gas kitchen an entirely new background for some of her typical slap-stick comedy.

"Merrily We Live," is booked for the Madison Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

OFFERS 7-POINT PLAN TO 'CURE' U.S. DEPRESSION

President of Manufacturers Says Program Would Bring Back Prosperity in Year.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — A seven-point program which he said "would in a year make us almost forget our present depression," was proposed today by Charles R. Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Hook, who is president of the American Rolling Mill company, outlines the program in an address before the American Foundrymen's association. He declared:

"Does industry have a program? It certainly does, and here are the planks of a well-though-out, sound platform on which we can confidently, hopefully stand:

"1. Constructive steps by government to create confidence in the fundamentals of the private enterprise system;

"2. Declaration by the federal government, that it will not proceed in competition with private utilities and will refrain from practices which retard public utility expansion by discouraging investment and purchases;

Co-operation Needed.

"3. Co-operation between all groups to increase the national income;

"4. Prompt solution of the underlying railroad problem;

"5. Avoidance of new federal reform legislation that will result in a fresh period of uncertainty at a time when the nation should be concentrating upon making jobs;

"6. Adequate definition of specific purpose in the appropriating of further national funds for relief purposes. Relief funds should be administered by experienced local agencies to prevent malingering and waste of taxpayers' money;

"7. Revision of the Wagner act so as to make it a workable instrument for curtailing labor disputes. This involves correcting its one-sided character, enforcing responsibility on labor organizations, separating the functions of fact finding, prosecution, and judicial decision, and establishing impartial administration by the National Labor Relations board."

Concerning government pump-priming, Hook asserted "the actual pumping itself will have to be done by private industry."

'DEATH HOUSE' MIKE IN DUMPS AS 5TH MURDER TRIAL FIZZLES

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — "Death House" Mike Alex they call him. They say he has a charmed life But Alex doesn't think so—he thinks the breaks are all against him.

He was bitter today because his fifth trial for the murder of Frank Pendlebury seven years ago ended in a mistrial

"I wish they'd get this thing over," said Alex "It's discouraging."

On his first trial the jury disagreed. Another year and another jury, and Alex was convicted. Then the court of appeals set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial Alex got it—his third—and a jury again convicted The court of appeals again set aside the verdict and ordered another new trial.

The fourth trial ended when the jury was unable to reach a verdict and Alex entered 1938 with his fate for the 1931 crime still undecided.

Starting again from scratch, the state called a jury in Queens county court and began Alex's fifth trial. It had progressed less than a day when the prosecution introduced evidence which the court held was prejudicial to Alex while not being admissable

It was grounds for a mistrial and the court so ordered and off the docket again went Alex's murder trial

Today the prosecution considered turning Alex over to New York county District Attorney Thomas E Dewey wants to try him for another slaying

The outlook says Alex is "discouraging"

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

NO matter where I would travel, except it be in the constantly frozen wastes the shifting desert sand or mountain walls of sheer, solid rock one familiar sight would greet me, the growing grass Like common sense in mankind it is the rarest, most uncommon plant that lives upon the earth

In early spring, even beneath melting drifts of snow I have seen its hardy blades stand in a watery bed, and soon the drab of winter fields, the hedges and steep hillsides are clothed in tender coverings of green In later spring the grasses lift their heads in bloom and make the motley colors of a lovely checkered landscape. In autumn, not to be outdone by earlier seasons, I find the meadows, swamps and most neglected fields a riot of varied bloom. The goldenrod, the many colored asters, the flowering thistle, iron weed, with dark purple top, the scarlet of wild blackberry leaves and the flaming, five-leaf ivy

The cereals, wheat rice oats rye, are one important part of this great family Indian corn, sugar cane and even the heavy bamboo colonies from which we get our fishing poles and natives build their huts—these all are grass The persistent green of meadow grass, the giant clumps that cover our western plains the sparse half withered bunches that cling so closely to the arid sands all these are what we directly or indirectly live upon

The medicines that fill the groaning shelves of drug stores, are brewed, distilled or crushed from roots or stems or flowers of this uncommon family.

The grass comes "creeping, creeping everywhere." Its matted turf renews the soil and keep the entire surface of our fields and open places from washing deep unsightly gullies.

The shell torn battle fields, soaked with human blood, the uneven, fresh-dug trenches the hallowed mounds of newly upturned soil where we laid our dearest friend to rest—here soon the grass will cover tenderly these scared wounds of earth and make them beautiful again.

The committee on Red Cross life saving will meet at 7:30 p. m. today at headquarters to complete the summer schedule for swimming and life saving instruction. Fred L. Tracy is chairman of the committee.

S. Farnum Coffin has been retained again this summer as a full time instructor, Tracy said, and will open the three-month season June 20. His services in either swimming or life saving will be available at Liberty park pool, North Lake pool, Shelby pool, the Children's Home pool, and the pool at Camp Avery Hand. Classes will be arranged for juniors and adults and for family groups.

The committee includes Tracy, Robert Finical, Harold Diehl, and W. B. Query, Shelby.

it would be illegal to take relief money from the city's sinking fund.

Mayor Burton returned from Columbus in time to tell the legislative committee, meeting in his office, that the investigation was welcome and that respect for government was at stake in the present crisis.

"Nothing could please me more," he said, "than to have this committee come here and make this investigation.

"Our facilities are open to you. If . . . you have suggestions, please give them to us."

SEEK QUICK VOTE

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Spurred by leaders' demands for haste, the Ohio senate set machinery in motion today to bring a relief program to the floor for a vote by the middle of next week.

Action also was speeded up in the house with committee hearings scheduled to start tomorrow on vital parts of the proposed $17,000,000 relief plan. Identical bills were pending in both branches.

Responding to a plea by majority leader Keith Lawrence, D., Cuyahoga, for a minimum of delay, the senate taxation and relief committee tentatively approved an amended administrative bill and prepared to consider tax measures this week.

The senate sent to its taxation committee along with relief measures the administration's bill to create a state building authority with power to issue $15,000,000 in bonds to finance a welfare building program.

The house and senate were to hold only skeleton sessions until next Mondoy or Tuesday with expectation that committees may have bills ready for a vote then.

Most important measures before both taxation committees would: reduce the requirement for passage of special relief levies and bond issues from a 65 per cent majority vote to a mere majority; enable local governments to levy a wide variety of excise taxes; and permit issuance of bonds in anticipation of collections through 1940 of a re-enacted utility excise tax and the admissions and beer taxes.

the Senior and junior high schools.

Derr was promoted from the post as music instructor at Hedges school.

J. Merton Holcombe was reemployed as director of the Senior high school band and authorized to continue the band's activities during the summer at a salary of $150 for the three-month period.

Three teachers were placed on the retirement list. They were J. Leo Hartman, former John Simpson principal, who has been in the school system since 1910; Miss Kate Moore, a teacher here since 1901, and J. A. O.S.R. RETURNS SIX FROM CAMP

Trusties Who Rebelled Against Order at Honor Farm Behind Walls Again.

Six Mansfield reformatory inmates returned from the Grafton honor camp for infraction of the rules were back behind the walls of the institution today.

The inmates are James Finch, 22; Walter Zeglin, 22; Robert Ward, 21; Sam Paradise, 24; Floyd Kesnner, 20, and Geno Bartolochi, 24. Finch, who was received from Hamilton county, has served nearly three years on a one to 20 year sentence for auto theft. Zeglin, from Cuyahoga county and Ward from Mahoning county, are serving a one to 15 year sentence for burglary. Paradise sentenced from Cuyahoga county and Kesnner from Stark county, have served nearly a year on a one to 15 year sentences for burglary and larceny. Bartolochi, received from Jefferson county, last fall, is under sentence from one to five years for removing railroad property.

While word from Grafton where the honor camp is located, said the trusties had rebelled against a new order preventing them from retiring before 8:30 p. m., Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said he had not received the official report from Supt. C. H. Swan at the Grafton farm.

Grafton reports said that the men had complained that the rules at the camp had become too strict and that they would rather come back to Mansfield and do "factory" work than work the long hours required of them on the farm.

GALION—Mrs. Charles Ricker and infant son were dismissed from Good Samaritan hospital Tuesday afternoon.

DRIVE FOR NEW SCHOOLS GIVEN BOARD'S OKAY

P. T. A. to Conduct Publicity Campaign in Behalf of Proposed Program.

Further impetus was given the proposed $1,000,000 building program for Mansfield schools last night when the board of education approved a plan of the Mansfield P. T. A. council for a publicity campaign.

The council's program was outlined to the board by Mrs. F. D. Boals, president of the council, and Glen L. Robinson, chairman of the council's legislative committee. They explained that their group wanted permission to promote the program, through lectures before city organizations and possibly motion pictures of crowded conditions in the junior high schools.

Under present plans, finances for the new buildings and improvements would come from a PWA grant and a local bond issue.

Warns of Optimism.

While he praised the interest of the P. T. A. group, H. W. Arlin, board president, warned against "too much optimism and creating of too much hope for new buildings before there is some assurance that PWA funds will be available for the program.

W. L. Althouse of the firm of Althouse and Jones, architects, submitted a preliminary draft of a proposed new building on the site of John Simpson junior high school. He said a plan for presentation to the state department of education would be ready when application blanks are received by the board within a few days.

Building plans must be approved by the state department before they are submitted to PWA officials with an application for a grant. Other architects in the city are drafting floor plans for the remaining projects in the building program.

The building pictured last night by Althouse would be about two-thirds the size of the Senior high school and would have a capacity of 1,000 pupils. The cost would approximate $450,000, he said.

The board's building proposal calls for a similar building at Cline avenue and Wood street, a shop building at Senior high school and improvements to a number of elementary buildings.

Dr. J. H. Bristor, board clerk, was authorized last night to ask for common pleas court approval to transfer $8,000 from the excess bond fund to the general fund for the purchase of 10 acres at the Cline avenue site for a new building.

The board recently took a six-months' option on the property with the right to purchase it for $7,000 from the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank. The additional $1,000 sought in the transfer would be applied on the purchase of other property which may be needed.

Board members authorized the expenditure of $500 for a new sidewalk between Ausdale avenue and the high school athletic field. Paving of the street in that section will make it necessary to build the walk, J. B. Moke, building superintendent, pointed out.

CLOSELY GUARD DOOMED KILLERS

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(AP)—Three convicted slayers who escaped from the county jail with a crudely fashioned key—only to be recaptured within 16 hours—were under heavy guard at the state's penitentiary today.

The trio, Herbert Moorman, 41, of Detroit, Mich., George Wingard, 19, of Columbia, and Clayton Crans, 28, of Rochester, N. Y., were caught last night within five miles of the jail.

Death Threatens Baby Again, She'll Lose Remaining Eye

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Specialists met in hurried consultation over the condition of Baby Helaine Judith Colan today and indicated that total blindness was the fate awaiting the child.

A report submitted by Dr. E. V. L. Brown indicated that removal of the seven weeks old girl's one remaining eye held forth the only hope of preventing her death.

The baby's left eye was removed on May 9 in the hope that the progress of an ailment known as glioma, a tumor of the optic nerve, might be checked.

Surgeons held out little hope even then that the baby's life could be saved without the sacrifice of both eyes, and admitted its life might be in jeopardy even at such a risk. The tumor was advancing on the brain, and barring an operation, death was considered imminent within a period of eight weeks.

Today a study of the removed eye, together with a prolonged examination of tissues from the socket, was completed and the report of Dr. Brown was submitted before associated specialists.

They were to confer at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Meanwhile Attorney Samuel Hoffman, spokesman for the Colan family, said:

"I am reliably informed that Dr. Brown's report indicates it will now be necessary to remove the right eye to save Baby Helaine's life."

PLANE LOCATED, 9 ABOARD DEAD

Farmer Finds Wreckage of Luxury Liner Which Hit Side of Mountain.

gle, 25, St. Paul, employe of the Northwest Airlines.

Discovery of the wreckage was made by a farmer named Peterson shortly after three planes had gone aloft in the murky dawn to make another aerial survey.

Piecing together reports, officials here reconstructed the route which they believe led to the crash.

After leaving Burbank in a soupy fog, the plane headed north and passed over Newhall, ten miles away. Even then it was behaving strangely, according to ground witnesses, who said it was flying so low they did not believe it would clear the mountains.

After passing over Newhall, the pilot of the ill-fated transport changed its course to northeasterly and apparently sought a short cut to the upper end of Mint canyon.

Witnesses there said it swung north through Agua Dulce canyon and that it could not have failed to crash into Mt. McDill if it maintained its direction and altitude.

Later, residents a few miles farther north at Oaks, in Upper Mint canyon, reported the plane, apparently in trouble, circled low over their homes.

At about the same time the wreckage was located today a hard rock miner in the desolate Mt. McDill region reported to authorities he heard a loud crash "shortly after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon."

The plane had taken off at 1:41 p. m.

WELCOME RAIN HALTS PLANTING

Heavy showers last night will delay crop planting in the county, but the rain will do far more good than harm, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

More rain is due tonight and Thursday as the mercury climbs to higher levels, the forecast predicted.

Total rainfall last night was .67 of an inch, most of it coming after midnight. The mercury at noon today stood at 69 degrees, six degrees above the top reading yesterday. Average for the past 24 hours was 57 degrees, a half degree above normal.

Board Inscribes Tribute to Wood In School Records

Paying tribute to the memory of Arthur H. Wood, Mansfield schools attendance officer for 13 years, who died last week, the board of education last night adopted resolutions of respect to Mr. Wood. A copy of the resolutions will be sent to the widow and her daughter.

The tribute read, in part: "The sudden death of Mr. Wood has deprived the school organization of a man whose long experience in the attendance department was of untold value to the city of Mansfield. In a quiet and unassuming way he performed the duties of his position with sympathy, understanding, and where necessary, the sternness to bring about the fulfilment of the obligations of school attendance.

"Mr. Wood was not alone an attendance officer, but an individual who studied and attempted to solve the underlying causes of non-attendance. Most of his cases were solved outside the jurisdiction of the court, through his understanding of the family, the children and the conditions which promoted the delinquency in the child."

DRUM MAJOR IN REGIONAL FINALS

Richard Dent, head drum major of the Senior high school band, will go to Elkhart, Ind., Thursday where he will participate in the regional finals of the high school solo and ensemble music contest.

Dent became eligible to enter the district finals last Saturday when he received the rating of "superior" in the state contest at Oberlin college, the highest possible rating.

One other drum major from the state will enter the contest, James Roberts of Steubenville, who also received a "superior" rating in the state contest. Also competing from this section will be Max Albright of Ashland, who was given the highest rating in the snare drum competition at Oberlin.

CAPACITY LOAD FOR FIRST MAIL FLIGHT ASSURED

9,000 Letters Expected to Be Sent Out of City on Plane Tomorrow.

The unprecedented sale of air mail stamps at the Mansfield post office since Monday indicated today that a capacity load of mail would be carried on the first official air mail flight from Mansfield tomorrow.

Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said that most of the 7,000 air mail stamps sold here in the last two and half days are being held for letters for the special pick-up flight, while another 2,000 letters are expected from other parts of the county.

The departure of the plane, which will make the Mansfield-Cleveland flight and mark the first time that air mail has been flown directly from the city, is scheduled for 3:15 p. m. tomorrow at the municipal airport.

Piloted by Mail Carrier.

The ship will be piloted by Henry Cunning, Mansfield mail carrier, who has been commissioned by the government as a temporary air mail pilot. He is scheduled to land at the Cleveland airport on the regular air mail route at 4 p. m.

A special Chamber of Commerce committee which is sponsoring the flight has arranged for ceremonies at the field on North Main street previous to the take-off.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter will make the principal address. Judge C. H. Huston, president of the Chamber of Commerce will introduce Postmaster Homberger who will turn the first air mail pouch over to the pilot.

Arrangements have been made to have the mail pouches from Shelby, Bellville, Shiloh, Plymouth and Lexington brought to the local post office where the trucks, which will leave for the airport at 2:30 p. m. escorted by police and sheriff's deputies.

In the mail that will be flown to Cleveland will be greetings to Postmaster General James A. Farley and each of the four assistants in Washington from Homberger and the Mansfield postal employes.

Homberger today advised all persons who are sending mail on the special flight to deposit the letters in the post office before the deadline at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

WARNS ON TAGS

Styert Orders License-less Cars Off Streets.

Mansfield garage owners and automobile dealers today were warned by city officials to keep unlicensed cars off the city streets or face prosecution.

Acting on an order issued by Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert, police also warned the companies against violating the two-hour parking limit and ordered them to keep automobiles off sidewalks.

Styert said he had issued the order "because some automobile dealers were using the city streets and sidewalks for a parking ground."

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that he was ready to back up the order and arrest any of the dealers found parking machines on the sidewalks or parking unlicensed cars on the streets. He warned also that the two-hour parking limit would be enforced.

for permission to examine TVA files and was refused.

I refusing, Harcourt A. Morgan informed Arthur E. Morgan that giving the latter access to the files would "manifestly violate our duty not to permit interference."

In deciding on the first step in its inquiry, the committee adopted a motion by Representative Mead (R., N. Y.) to hear the two Morgans and Lilienthal at the "earliest date practicable."

The committee agreed to leave to Donahey a decision on when A. E. Morgan and the two TVA directors should be called.

Members suggested, however, that Morgan be called promptly, and Donahey said he would arrange the hearing as expeditiously as possible.

The motion specified the committee would hear charges and facts which Morgan might wish to present as well as the answers of Directors Harcourt Morgan and David Lilienthal, and any criticisms they might have of A. E. Morgan.

The vote on Mead's motion was unanimous, although Senator Frazier (R., N. D.) said he would prefer that the committee obtained "first hand information" before calling the officials.

PENNSY TURNS DOWN CIO BID

Lewis-Guffey Slate Bows to Earle, Jones; Governor Piles Up 375,000 Lead.

cratic battle, 72-year-old Gifford Pinchot was thwarted in a drive for a third term as governor and silver-haired Sen. James J. (Pudler Jim) Davis piled up a seemingly insurmountable lead for renomination.

Margiotti Poor Third.

Charles J. Margiotti, ousted state's attorney general, "lone wolf" candidate and No. 1 chargemaker of the Democratic gubernatorial row, ran a poor third. Eddie McCloskey, ex-pugilist and once mayor of Johnstown, fell far out of the running as a Democratic senatorial candidate.

The ballot count:

Democratic U. S. senator—(7,027 of 8,075 districts)—Earle, 691,418; Wilson, 283,725.

Democratic governor — (7,080 districts)—Jones, 537,039; Kennedy, 440,829; Margiotti, 151,778.

Republican U. S. senator—(6,867 districts)—Davis, 692,070; Owlett, 407,242.

Republican governor—(6,980 districts)—James, 851,765; Pinchot, 384,390.

Jones, be-spectacled and soft-voiced, came to the campaign from a relatively obscure but active legal and political career. He won a French citation for heroism as a World war ambulance driver, later enlisted with the American forces. He went to the 1932 Democratic convention as an Alfred E. Smith backer, but swung to Roosevelt after the final ballot. The Jones family—three children—live in a Pittsburgh suburb.

Earle, too, won World war honors as a lieutenant-commander in the navy. He had been a Republican but joined the New Deal six years ago and was appointed minister to Austria. He became governor in a Democratic sweep of this traditionally Republican state in 1934.

Former Governor Pinchot early conceded victory to red-haired Judge Arthur H. James of the state superior court. James, an anthracite mine worker in his youth and lieutenant governor a decade ago, carried the standard of the old-line Republican organization.

Virtually the same state leaders who backed James took a loss, however, in the victory of "Pudler Jim" Davis. They had supported G. Mason Owlett, state senator and national committeeman.

The Republicans nominated Samuel S. Lewis for lieutenant governor and W. S. Livengood, jr., for secretary of internal affairs, both organization men.

Democrats nominated state committee-endorsed candidates for two other state offices, State Sen. Leo C. Mundy for lieutenant governor and Thomas A. Logue, incumbent, for secretary of internal affairs. The vanquished Lewis-Guffey candidates were Judge Ralph H. Smith and Edith B. Dewitt.

The Democratic turn-out was the largest in the party's primary election history. In 1934, pevious recorded primary, the total was 576,000.

Anti-CIO forces were jubilant. Too, there was sweet victory for the American Federation of Labor, arch CIO foe, which fought both Mayor Wilson and Kennedy and endorsed the winning Senator Davis on the Republican side.

Laid open to question was the natonal political stature of Senator Guffey. An ardent Roosevelt adherent, lately mentioned as a vice presidential possibility in 1940, Guffey had been regarded as the Pennsylvania New Deal chieftain.

But Guffey split with his state committee over its endorsement of Jones for governor and threw in with Lewis and the CIO forces. As the committee slate won without him, Guffey even saw his home district in Pittsburgh lost to the foe.

The results presage a tempestuous November general election fight.

Freedom of speech is guaranteed in this country—but it is not made compulsory.

When everything else fails, there is always the chance of becoming a candidate for some public office.

It is recalled by oldtimers that, as much as forty years ago, Mr. Dooley remarked: "The dimmycratic party ain't on speakin' terms with itself."

Commemoration of An Ideal.

HOWEVER grotesque such an idea may seem, today is being somewhat observed as "World Goodwill Day."

Intended to bring recollection of the first International Conference for World Peace, held at The Hague thirty-nine years ago this week, May 18 has been designated as World Goodwill Day and is made the occasion for further preachment of the doctrine of universal permanent peace upon the earth—destined to be eventually accomplished by the steadily advancing civilization of later generations but now made impossible by the closeness to savagery of some of those who rule the destinies of great nations.

For those who are inclined to pessimism, as well as for those who lean toward too great optimism, it may be well to point out that only 39 years have passed since the first International Conference for World Peace. Fifteen years later, however, a large part of the world was plunged into the worst war of its history. Even now, much of the world is engaged in warfare or acting in a way that appears destined to make later hostilities unavoidable. Even the most peace-loving of nations are not free from the threat of war and must proceed with preparations in order to be in readiness should need arise.

In the United States—and probably elsewhere over the world—there are an increasing number of people who realize the futility of war and the advantages of permanent peace.

Such occasions as World Goodwill Day serve to center attention on an ideal that will some time grow into a reality.

The Buckeye Boys' State.

KEEP an eye on those boys who are chosen to go to Columbus each summer to participate in the activities of the Buckeye Boys' State.

As one of them said at a civic club meeting at which he spoke yesterday, civics had always been "a dull study" for him until he had opportunity to take part in the actual work of operating the Boys' State last June.

One of the faults of the educational system—school and college—is that it is too much devoted to theories rather than practice, with an apparent effort to teach all about everything, without children really learning how to do anything.

Increasing emphasis on vocational training, together with supplementary instruction and experience gained through such activities as the Boys' State, tend to liven the interest of young people in things that are to be learned and to give them a better idea of practical application for the knowledge they are acquiring from teachers and text books.

In addition to the benefits derived from the Boys' State by high school juniors who attend, there is the advantage of having these boys back in school as seniors, thus enabled to pass along to their associates some of the training in citizenship and knowledge of government that they acquired.

The American Legion, which sponsors the Buckeye Boys' State, and those individuals and organizations in each community and county which contribute to its support, are performing a valuable service, not only for the boys privileged to participate during the 10-day period but also for civic betterment in the not-distant future.

Mansfield's First Hobby Show.

WHILE Mansfield and Richland county probably have a fair representation of hobbyists, this fascinating and sometimes profitable avocation has never attracted local public attention and interest to the extent that it has in many other cities.

Announcement is made that the Junior Association of Commerce and the Y. M. C. A. are to join in sponsoring a hobby exhibit in Mansfield, in co-operation with city schools and merchants, for six days starting next Saturday.

A "hobby show," such as is being planned, has value not only as a means of giving the public an opportunity to see interesting collections of various kinds but also gives young people an idea of the pleasure that can be derived from early adoption of some particular "hobby" of their own.

The success of this Mansfield hobby show will depend largely on the extent to which hobbyists in city and county can be induced to exhibit their treasured collections and the assurance that can be given that no harm will come to any of the exhibits.

Now that the start has been made, it may well be hoped that exhibits will be so attractive and public interest so great that hobbyism will be given added impetus in Mansfield and Richland county and that a "hobby" show will become an annual event here.

The Reign of Fear.

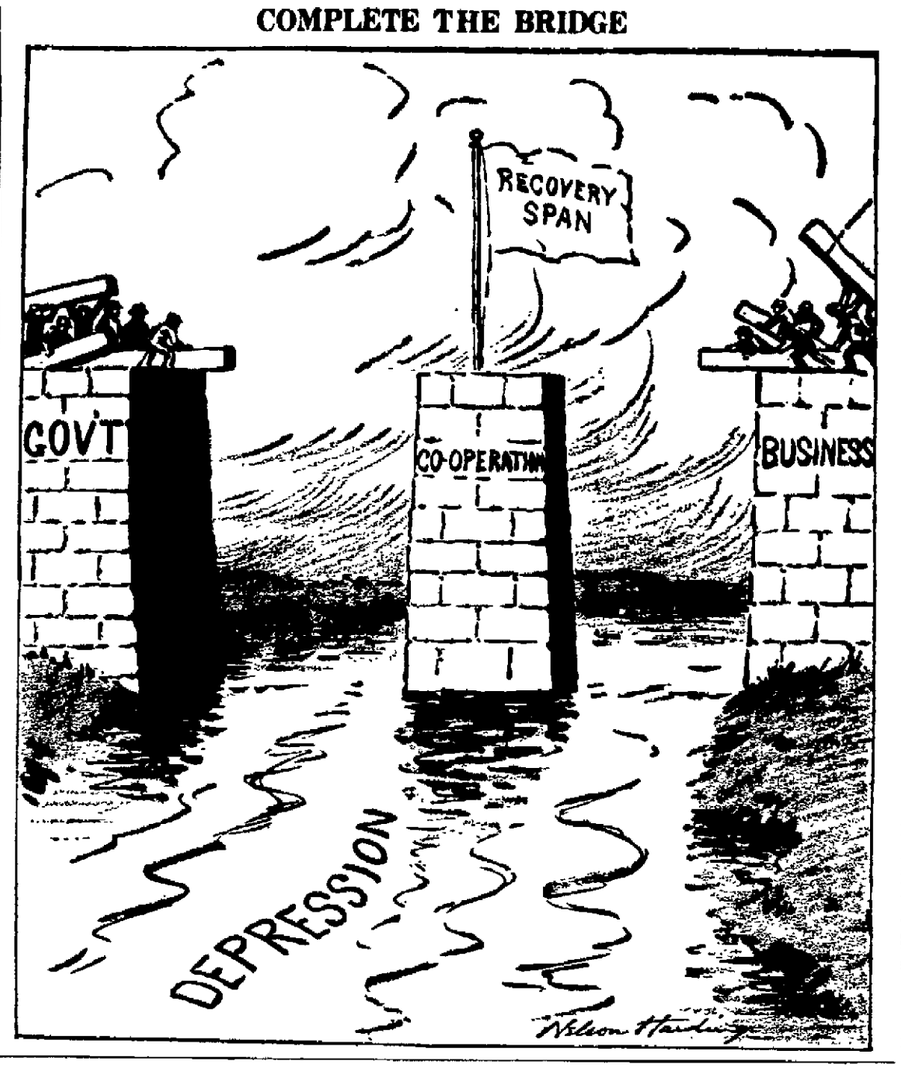
THERE is much sympathy for Haile Selassie, the emperor without a country, and for his conquered people. It was a noble plea that he made before the League of Nations council at Geneva, but a hopeless one.

"Members of the League," he said, "this is a reign of fear. The states that are members of the League are each one for itself. Since this contagion of oppression has spread through the world, states have permitted international morality to vanish. May God forgive them! Ethiopia continues to climb her Calvary."

It is a reign of fear, and so it is a reign of cowardice. There is moral cowardice along with physical courage. Fascist Italy gets away with the cruel conquest of Ethiopia; Japan gets away with the less cruel but lawless conquest of Manchuria; Nazi Germany does likewise with Austria; and the Fascist powers meddle in Spain, making civil war more terrible than ever before, and no one knows where the end will be.

The man who changes his mind may have been right in the first place.

COMPLETE THE BRIDGE



South American Revolts Deadly

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Well, to resume my last column's analysis of Latin America's political uprisings, such as the recent abortive revolt again Brazilian President Getulio Vargas, at Rio De Janeiro:

I never happened to be present at any outbreak in Brazil, but I distinctly was in attendance at one in the Argentine Republic.

And I will say that, when our southern brethren really go on the rampage, they are capable of staging a genuinely realistic performance. Talk about comic opera rebellions! There is nothing so very comic in being shot at by machine guns.

ON PAST OCCASIONS—

I was in Buenos Aires during most of the World war—handling Uncle Sam's publicity after our entrance in the world conflict.

Before that there had been a couple of sizable riots, but they did not count. On these occasions pro-Ally mobs undertook, with considerable success, to sack German places of business in the Argentine capital. Germans are numerous there. However, allied sentiment predominated. The Germans were on the defensive.

Local authority objected to these disorders. Still, they were not hostile to the local government, which put them down but not bloodthirstily.

AFTER THE WAR—

Outright ill feeling did not develop until just after the war.

By that time proletarian revolutions had become epidemic in Europe. The germs "took" more or less in Latin America—especially in the Argentine, where European culture is much fresher than it is in the United States.

A tentative communistic government actually was organized, under cover, in Buenos Aires.

At that juncture several formidable strikes were declared.

The Communists deemed it an opportune moment to take over control.

PROPERTY CONTROLS.

This was different from the earliest commotions, because it meant the propertied class was threatened, surely enough.

Hipolito Irigoyen was president then. Irigoyen was quite a radical. He did not want a revolution but he sympathized with the commonalty, and hesitated to resort to extreme measures, which gave the rebels a pretty good start.

But the propertied folk controlled the army, which, as it carefully had arranged, consisted of its own crowd as to officers and, as far as possible, as to the rank and file.

The propertied aggregation had done an effective job, too.

A QUEER ARRANGEMENT.

Accordingly General Adolfo Della Piane was resurrected from the retired list and put in charge of the republic's military establishment.

It was unconstitutional, because it was done over President Irigoyen's head. Nevertheless the army accepted Della Piane. He was a nice old man. I interviewed him. "I hate to kill these people," he said, "but I'll keep on doing it if I have to."

He was a dictator for a few days. He doubtless could have remained dictator as long as he lived, but he didn't care to. Having suppressed communism, he handed the country's rulership back to Irigoyen without argument and retired to private civil life. Irigoyen was revoluted into the background later, too, but the general had nothing to do with it.

MANY KILLED.

But while Della Piane was on the job certainly he mowed those Communists down.

Early in the uprising I ventured out of doors under the impression that the thing was one of those comic opera affairs that I previously had seen.

It was not.

The Avenida Alvear is comparable to Pennsylvania avenue, in Washington, with the capitol at one end of it and the Casa Rosada (equivalent to our White House) at the other end. General Della Piane had that thoroughfare swept by machine guns for three days and nights, while the revolt lasted.

I lived on one side of that street and had my office on the other side.

Believe me, I crossed it on the jump on my way to business in the morning and on my return at eventide.

NOTHING "COMIC."

It continued for three days.

In that time, according to official records, 800 would-be revolutionaries were killed.

And they only reckoned those who formally were brought in and laid out in the morgue. Assuredly there were many more.

There is nothing comic opera about that.

CONSERVATIVE ALLIES.

There are two kinds of conservatives in Latin America.

The big landlords are conservatives. So are the bankers.

The landlords and the bankers clash. But they are allies against the proletariat.

Essentially, same here.

Keeping Step

Trouble Lies Beyond Surface.

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SPEAKING of the relief crisis in Cleveland, a New York paper "traces" the trouble to labor-saving machines. But, if one goes through the industrial regions, he will find that labor-saving machines, also, are idle. The trouble, therefore, lies beyond—both employer and employe say.

The employer usually blames the New Deal and its policies. The employe blames the employer.

And the New Deal tries to prime the pump—while local governments squabble over who is to feed the starving, and with what.

BEYOND?

Evidently the trouble lies far beyond the elemental surface matters discussed. The question is socio economic.

When one says that, immediately there is a cry of "Socialism!" or "Communism!" or "Dictatorship!" In the meantime, however, evolution continues marching on, taking its terrible toll because we will not recognize it.

Why should machines cause poverty? If they would operate day and night for years, they could not produce all that the people actually need, but cannot buy. It is not machines that cause poverty, but man. Man and his greed, and his laws to protect greed.

If the people who are jobless and hungry were permitted to take their proportionate share of what they produce, soon every wheel would be turning, and more machines would be needed. And the farmer, too, would have an outlet for his crops. People then could buy.

But that is not enough. There would be confusion if there were not national planning, national control of all credit and all resources.

Alas, we hear the cries now even of some of the unemployed, "That WOULD be socialism!"

But shall we drift into chaos and complete disintegration instead? THAT would be revolution, destructive revolution.

IS THAT IT?

We quote from a reader, William Owen:

In order for the people to buy goods they must have money; in order for them to have money they must receive wages. Either industry pays wages or the government taxes industry and pays relief.

"Why not create a system that would make relief unnecessary? If industry would manufacture more goods and give labor, through wages, the buying power to absorb increased production, there would be no necessity for relief, and we would cure unemployment in the best way, by putting men back to work in private industry."

Mr. Owen would have complete government regulation in industry, with quotas set.

But what of the supreme court, Mr. Owen? Would it not declare that unconstitutional, as it did the NRA and the original farm control plan? In spite of President Roosevelt's naming of Justices Black and Reed, there still is an apparent "anti-experimental" majority on the supreme court bench.

A TALE OF FOLLY

The New Deal took care of all employment until (1) its own efforts were curtailed by court and congress; and (2) it took the road back, on its own part.

How long it could have continued with its plan without entering (1) semi-socialism, or (2) inflation, is another matter.

Take the state of Ohio, where the relief situation has been worst.

In the early days of relief, persons were employed by the government in unoccupied factories, producing goods for their own use. It worked well, but private manufacturers complained. The government "production for use" system was discarded. Persons were thrown on direct relief. Then the federal government unloaded direct relief on the state. And the state, dominated by a rural legislature, unloaded relief on counties. Then the counties, in such large industrial centers as Cleveland, said they had no legal means of raising funds for relief—and threw the burden on the cities. And the cities found that powerful real estate interests had put through a law in the legislature, restricting their borrowing power. Thus, tens of thousands of unemployed and hungry persons, through no fault of their own, were put at the mercy of political bickerings.

Listen, World!

Disagreement's Good for What Ails You.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DON'T always agree with you!" you say looking mad. Well, suppose you don't? Why get so smoked up about it? Why act as if you'd been insulted?

Personally, I don't care a hoot whether you agree with me or not. I'm not trying to make you agree with me. I'm just thinking aloud—trying to get at the rights of things. Sometimes I hit the truth. Oftener I don't. And even when I do find something that seems true to me, it may not seem true to you. For no two people ever see truth in the same way. But what of it? Why should I get mad because you don't agree with my notion of the truth? Why should you get mad because I don't agree with yours?

As a matter of fact, this column is much more valuable to you if you do disagree with it. Of what service would a yes-column be? It would tickle your vanity, coddle your sentimentality, alibi your laziness and cowardice and cussedness. Then where would you be, after you had finished reading it? You would be just where you started—as firmly entrenched as ever in your complacent stupidity.

But this isn't a yes-column. It says things you don't like. Rude, upsetting things. Things that challenge your comfortable theories and raise Cain with your pretty day-dreams. You don't want to think . . . you don't want to be disturbed. But this column makes you think . . . makes you argue . . . makes you fight for your own convictions.

And what happens?

Action happens.

Suddenly you find yourself out on the firing line, doubting, denying, wondering, rebelling, hurling yourself into new territories, risking new adventures—

GROWING.

Growth—that is what happens when you meet disagreement. And that's the greatest thing that could possibly happen to you. Yet, how you try to avoid it!

Maybe that's what ails you—

For years you've been complaining because you can't get ahead. Other people get ahead but you stay stuck in the same old rut. Why? You blame it on fate. You say you never get the breaks. But is that true? Haven't you had your chance—again and again?

Yes, I know—it was never exactly the chance you wanted. There was always handicap . . . an inconvenience . . . something that seemed offensive or dangerous or tiresome. So you passed it up because you had always avoided offensive dangerous or tiresome things.

And now you're complaining that you never get ahead—but whose fault is it? How can you get ahead if you're always dodging the main traffic—always seeking some pleasant, safe, secluded by-path?

Conflict, criticism, competition, they are what you need. Something to jolt your ignorance, swat your conceit, challenge your cowardice—

You don't agree with me, you say?

Then thank God for it!

Thank God for everything that makes life more upsetting, more exciting—for everything that puts you on your mettle!

America Is Better.

Nobody with any information at all, would insist that in the United States there is nothing to be remedied, no progress to be made, no inequities to be treated. It is manifest that there always will be work for reformers.

But, by comparison, the worst here is as good or better than the best of some other places. The average American worker's income is $1275; the average Briton receives $783 each year. The German worker has an annual income of $718; the Italian gets only $239.

That is the difference between living in a democracy and living under any other form of government. American living standards, too, are the highest in the world. So, after all, while there are problems to be solved, while there are injustices, yet America is the freest of all lands for those who are neither great nor immensely wealthy.—Ohio State Journal.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—With the summer cruises on and the gypsies taking to the open road, being a reporter in the largest town in the world at the moment is largely a matter of going through the morning's mail. Adventurers, beachcombers, expatriates, lecturers, authors, actors, and engineers—all are departing for remote havens . . . well, almost all. So to the mail basket:

"After two weeks of Paris I long for Spain, where you'd never guess there was a war, if you keep away from the barbed wire," writes J. H. Maddon, who once sailed around Ireland in an 18-foot canoe. "Paris is franc-crazy and people are bores but the food continues excellent. Yesterday I saw the white-haired poet, Richard LeGallienne, and also Georges Carpentier, who looks as trim as when he fought Dempsey."

IN A BOLD scrawl, Sam Blake admits that the "smallest newspaper in the world is the Bimini Bugle, published at Bimini, Bahamas, and edited by Roderick H. Rollins. It's 4½ by 5½ and there's usually a copy on display, with other foreign newspapers, in the West Point Lounge of the Hotel Piccadilly, if you're interested."

Joe Heidt, of the Theater Guild, ambles in with a note from Eugene O'Neill: "Please emphatically deny that I have any intentions of breaking with the Guild or producing cycle (of plays) myself. The report is nonsense. My first two plays are already under contract to the Guild and I discussed plans for production of whole cycle with Theresa Helburn and Lawrence Langner when they were out here and since then by letter. Deeply regret this rumor. Guild has always been fine to me as a producer. Its members are my personal friends and my one feeling is of grateful loyalty to the organization and absolute confidence in it."

MEANWHILE, Albert Kornfeld wanders past this observer's look-out with perhaps the most amusing letter of all. . . . It is a shriek in the night . . . for help . . . It seems Alexander Woollcott, "the talented busybody," made a rash wager with a lady and lost. . . . His appeal, addressed to Vogue, follows:

"This is a cry for help. In a weak-minded moment I made a wager with young Mrs. Charles King Mallory, jr.—it was nominated in the bond that, in the event of my losing, I should design and present her with an evening gown—and now I can no longer evade the painful task of paying up.

"Can you be persuaded to represent me in this matter? You see, I don't know anything about dressmaking, but I know what I like. I want the gown to be of chartreuse crepe with a great, walloping doodad of some ivory-white material, and I want the white piped with black. How does one go about such things? Will you arrange it for me? Yours sincerely . . . Alexander Woollcott.

"P. S. Remember the black piping. Without it the dress will be like an egg without salt."

CHAPTER VIII

After a Sunday dinner with his uncle, an occasion which found Romulus Wardlaw too gloomily occupied with thought to proffer any particular conversation, Clayton went to the mill office. There were some new forms to be drawn up for his projected cost system and he planned to drive to the city in the morning to go over them with the printer. All the time he was at work, his thoughts kept reverting to Larry Layne.

It was getting to be a habit. Rather queer, too.

During the past few weeks he never had gone out into the office without first glancing in her direction. One glimpse of her brown head bent over her desk, or her slender form moving about the files, brought a particular satisfaction Sometimes, Clayton had rather resented the interest she held for him. There was no good reason for it. But Hilary Layne seemed to stand out from all the others. So different. His first encounter with her, thanks to his own stupidity, had not been very satisfactory. Perhaps that was why she appealed to him But she was different She was different from any girl he ever had met.

At first, he had tried to dismiss it with the flippant decision that it was "just one of those things" Miss Layne was more attractive than the other girls in the office, had more personality, a sense of humor. That was all there was to it.

Alone in his room this afternoon, he had to admit that there was something more to it all

The forms he was trying to draw up had a queer trick of blurring and fading Through the ruled lines peered a winsome little face, a face with searching gray eyes and a small, wistful voice. Odd how that word "wistful" associated itself with any mental description of Larry Layne. She wasn't really like that . . rather independent But it gave one the impression so often that she needed to be picked up and comforted for some reason. Not an unpleasing speculation, either

It was going to be very satisfactory to have her in this office for a time. Pleasant to glance up from one's work and find her there. Clay decided that he must find out just how much she did know about typing and shorthand Perhaps the new arrangement could be made more or less permanent, if Larry could serve as a secretary of sorts He didn't like that fluttery, anxious air Miss Harrison, Wardlaw's secretary, seemed to feel she must display when she took one of his occasional letters.

Monday proved a day of vexatious delays in the city and it was almost dinner time when Clay reached Norwood. He drove directly to the Wardlaw home, determined to have a bath and change of clothing before appearing at the table, even if he were late. He was late, in spite of his hasty efforts, and Romulus was ready for dessert, when his nephew put in an apologetic appearance.

As he hurried through his meal, he attempted to reveal something of his day's activities, but Mr. Wardlaw remained unresponsive. After the latter had finished and had thrust his rolled napkin into a massive ring, he pushed back his chair abruptly and limped to the door. At the threshold, he paused and regarded the broad shoulders of his nephew with a frown.

"Will your engagements permit a little interview in the library when you have finished?" he wanted to know. Clay twisted about in the doorway

"Of course," he said in his genial fashion. "I wanted to talk with you Be right there."

When he appeared, a few moments later, Romulus lost no time in introducing the topic uppermost in his mind.

"I would appreciate it," he began dryly, "if I might hear something of the details of this new cost system. It seems that you have not taken Mr. Knott into your confidence particularly. He couldn't tell me a great deal about it"

"I'll be glad to," Clay returned easily "Merely getting the detail whipped into shape. I have a good outline of it in my brief case, if you'd like me to get it."

"Later. I would be more interested in knowing right now what, if any, difference it is going to make in the clerical force."

"None at present, Uncle. I plan to utilize the people we have in that department until it is working as well as I expect it to. After that, if you wish, I think we might dispense with one or two jobs . . . or do some shifting about. I would rather not let anyone go, unless it seems necessary later on."

"That sounds encouraging," the expressionless voice went on. "I took the liberty of telling Knott that his position was not in jeopardy, so far as I knew."

"Of course not," Clay returned, attempting to conceal his resentment at the sarcasm in the little man's voice

"How do you propose to launch your new plan? I doubt the advisability of tying yourself down to bookkeeping . . . at your salary. It might rather easily narrow your perspective while you are trying to get a line on our whole project."

"Naturally" Clay was determined to keep his temper. "I shall have some one of the clerks handle the first routine work . . . under my supervision. I want to make sure that my ideas are all in working order before I apply them"

"Excellent" Romulus' voice suddenly became softer, almost gentle "And whom did you have in mind as an assistant?"

Sudden intuition warned Clay that there was something more to this conference than had at first appeared When he answered the last question, his voice matched Wardlaw's for evenness

"I have arranged to use Miss Layne's services for the present."

"And who will take her place?"

"Miss Case, I think. That can be arranged easily."

"I see" Romulus studied the ceiling thoughtfully. "Has it occurred to you that such a plan will result in some confusion? It seems to me that Miss Layne would find herself obliged to do considerable traveling between her desk and your room. Wouldn't she?"

Clayton stiffened involuntarily. There was something, after all It concerned Larry.

* * *

"I had thought of that," he admitted. "I will arrange to have Miss Layne use a table in my office where I can keep an eye on her work.

"Ah . . . yes. Her work," observed Wardlaw softly.

Clayton cast aside his restraint His eyes narrowed.

"I said 'work'," he repeated coldly. "And I don't care for your implication that the idea is anything beside a business arrangement. It isn't."

"Then, don't you think it would be better for all concerned to have a young man serve as your assistant? It will cause less comment, at least. Why not use young Elison? I would prefer it"

"I was under the impression that changes in my department were to be left to my discretion," Clayton returned stiffly. "It is unfortunate, but I am afraid that it is too late to follow your suggestion. As a matter of fact, I have already gone over things with Miss Layne and told her what I expect her to do. After all, the arrangement is only temporary. When the new system is installed, Knott should be able to handle it with little or no supervision. You must know that he responds rather slowly to innovations"

"So do I," was the sharp retort. "Especially when they concern my own business. I don't want Miss Layne, or any other girl quartered in your office. Permanently or temporarily."

"Then we'll drop the whole matter," Clayton said quietly. "If it suits you to lose money by employing antiquated methods, I have nothing more to say"

"We will not drop it" Wardlaw exclaimed heatedly. "That's what I took you in for . . . what I expect of you But it isn't necessary to lug in any distractions. The first thing you know, your interests will be divided. I've seen such things happen."

"Bosh" his nephew returned impolitely "I still insist upon handling this job the way I wish . . . or not at all. That's all I have to say"

"Then perhaps you'll permit me to make a few remarks." Romulus pulled himself erect in his chair, leaned forward and reached for his cane. His eyes behind their small spectacle glasses were bright with anger. "I went over matters very carefully in my own mind, Clayton, before I made you the proposition to enter business with me"

"You've mentioned something of the sort"

"Well, I did just that thing, sir. From your past records and the word of your employers, I satisfied myself that you would appreciate I was giving you the chance of a lifetime. A future that you would not be likely to attain by your own efforts. I had every reason to believe that you would settle down to this job, work night and day if you had to, to make good. The same as any ambitious young man would do, if he had brains."

"And you have been disappointed, I infer?"

"Don't be flippant with me. Of course I have been disappointed Before you even saw the inside of the mill, you were trying to start some sort of an affair with one of my women employes. Never mind how I learned that. I make it my business to find out what is going on around here"

"So it seems."

"In other words, your interests were divided before you took hold of your duties To prove that they still are, you lose no time in trumping up an excuse to have this same girl in the office I was foolish enough to construct for you at your request."

"Wait a moment . . ."

"You wait" Romulus snapped, pounding on the rug with his cane. "I'm not through. Saturday afternoon, while I was busy at the mill trying to keep things running, you had this woman out in that damnable cockleshell of yours Lallygagging Not content with that, you drive around through the streets with her in your car I happened to see that"

"Very interesting I am none too familiar with Norwood, or I would have used the back streets Was there anything else?"

"Yes, sir I am trying to be fair enough to appreciate that you are not accustomed to living in a small community like ours where everybody knows everybody's business and talks about it By this time, I can assure you that all Norwood knows that you are going about with that Layne girl and not tending to business. That is not going to do me any good, and it is not going to do you any good, young man. I might add that it won't do her any good, either . . . though I doubt if your affections are seriously enough engaged to make that a factor."
